In appreciation for the guidance, understanding, and friendship which have been given to us during our high school years, we, the Class of 1953, dedicate this, our WELLESLEYAN, to the faculty, with the hope that we may be able to fulfill the ideals which have been set before us.

Lyman B. Owen

SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

our administration welcomed us,

In the years to come may the pages of this Year-book bring back memories of your high school years. For each of you there have been triumphs and defeats, hopes and fears, joys and heartaches; but through it all, your parents and your teachers have tried their best to guide you in the right direction. Together, during these years, we have laid a foundation on which we hope you will continue to build. May you live each day with humility, kindness, and understanding. In this approach lie peace and security for you and for all mankind.

With the brisk weather came field hockey

Can we ever forget the wonderful times we've had these past three years on the hockey field! Competition there is high. Yearly, sixty girls compete for the thirty openings on varsity and junior varsity squads. Some reach their goal only in their senior year.

With a schedule of ten interscholastic games, bus trips to and fro are one of the highlights of the season. We will never forget the singing and cheering on these trips. Win, draw, or lose, it was fun all the way. There was never any let-down of morale. When the next game came up, the girls were in there fighting just the same.

This year, the team made the majority of wins at the end of the season. Perhaps the high spot was the win over Walpole, undefeated by any team for six years. Wellesley was one of the two teams to overcome Walpole this year. Furthermore, we took two games from our arch-rival, Needham.

Seniors on the team contributed to all the victories by providing a strong defensive backfield, composed of Linda Gorham, captain, Margaret Stanley, Valerie Scheufele, and Beverly Greco. Just as helpful in the line were Sheila Sullivan and Betty Keating. Though the seniors leave, underclass veterans remain to brighten the prospects for 1953-'54.

CROSS COUNTRY

First Row: M. McCracken, D. Walker, D. Chapin, R. Hogarty, W. Botsford.
Second Row: Mr. Chapman, E. Kenerson, W. Priest, H. Laidlaw, P. Earl, P. Read, E. Boehne, H. Gross. Missing from picture: R. MacKay.

The cross country team had an excellent season this year. They won six of their dual meets and lost three, two of these being lost by only one point. The leading scorers were Chapin, Hogarty, Botsford, MacKay, Walker, Kenerson, and McCracken. Captain Dave Chapin broke two course records and led the team, scoring in every meet. One of the records established was on Wesleyan's own course, Chapin's new time being 14 minutes, 2.5 seconds, lowering the old record by 10 seconds.

The team came through strongly in the three most important races of the season. In the Divisional Meet in Winchester, Wellesley took second in a field of seven teams. Chapin placed second individually, the other top men for Wellesley being Botsford, MacKay, Walker, and Hogarty. In the Middlesex League Meet at Tufts, in a field of fifteen teams, Wellesley was third. Chapin, Hogarty, MacKay, Botsford, and Kenerson finished in that order for Wellesley. In the State Meet, Wellesley placed second in the twenty-team Class D Division. The top five Wellesley runners were those consistent scorers, Chapin, Hogarty, MacKay, Botsford, and McCracken.

Although the team will lose two excellent runners in Hogarty and MacKay, seven letter men are returning, and the squad should be powerful and experienced enough in 1953 to improve its already fine record.

Early in the year, we elected our representatives

The Student Council has always worked with boundless energy and know-how. This year, under the able leadership of its President, Bob Severson, and its adviser, Miss Bronson, the Council set to work sponsoring the Season Ticket Drive, directing the Sophomore Icebreaker, and aiding in the election of the class officers.

The Student Council has participated in the Division, State, and National Associations of Student Councils. Bob Severson was elected the Eastern Divisional Representative to the National Conference; JoAnne Eastburn, the Secretary of the Eastern Division; both were outstanding representatives for the school.

Because of its recognized capabilities, the Student Council was chosen to meet with Council members from Needham in order to better relations between the two schools through closer acquaintance. An unprecedented venture, the joint meeting did much to effect harmony between the rival schools.

The Council has supervised such drives as the Red Feather and the March of Dimes, and has written the "High School Highlights" in the Townsmen; the Student Council has been represented on the P.T.S.A. Advisory Council of the Community Council. Such worthwhile activities create a close relationship between the town and the school.

Conference at Winchester

of well-planned assemblies.*

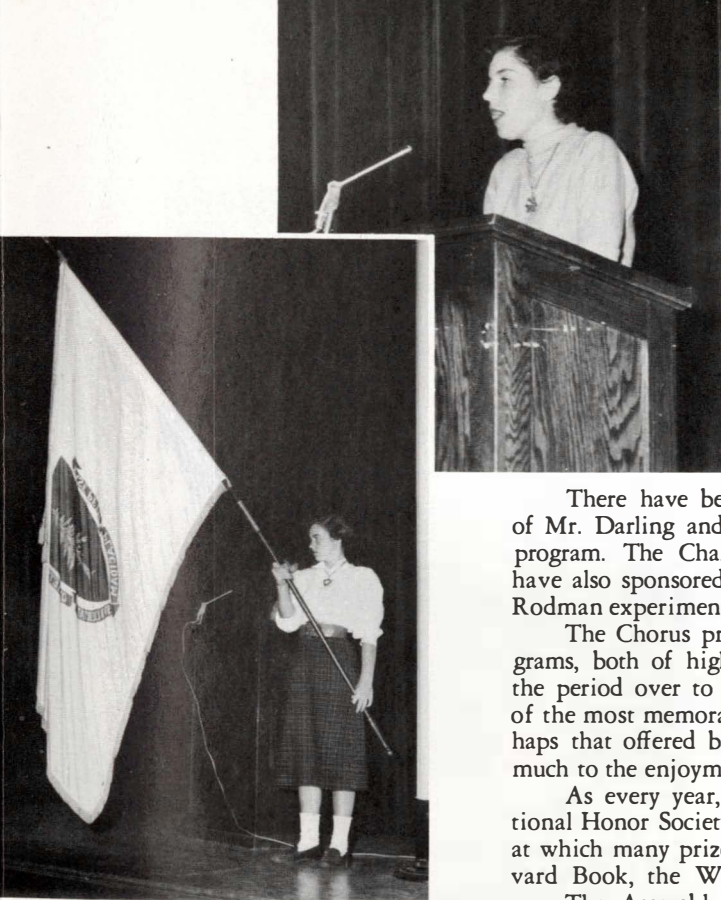

The assembly period each Friday was something to look forward to; thanks to the fine work of the Assembly Committee and those taking part in the programs, it was never disappointing. This year the Committee chose as its chairman, Sue Gordon, who has worked with Miss Walton and the members of the Committee to produce a broad variety of assemblies.

There have been serious programs such as the vocational help panels of Mr. Darling and moving dramas such as the impressive United Nations program. The Chameleons have presented several exceptional plays; they have also sponsored outside features; it was surely fascinating to watch Mr. Rodman experiment with that make-up of his.

The Chorus presented the traditional Thanksgiving and Christmas programs, both of high quality. Occasionally, the Assembly Committee turned the period over to private groups, independent of school sponsorship. One of the most memorable assemblies produced by independent groups was perhaps that offered by the Melody Makers, a student band which performed much to the enjoyment of the audience.

As every year, a special feature was the assembly devoted to the National Honor Society. Another traditional program was the Award Assembly, at which many prizes were given out: athletic jackets and trophies, the Harvard Book, the Wellesley Awards, and the Spanish Award.

The Assembly Committee has done an outstanding job, not only in presenting fine assemblies, but also in bringing together all the organizations and groups of the school to give them an opportunity to display their achievements before the entire school.

Down the field marched the gaily dressed members of the band, their red capes snapping briskly in the cold air. Their jaunty rhythm was matched by the high-stepping twirlers, whose silver batons flashed up, down, and around with never a missed beat.

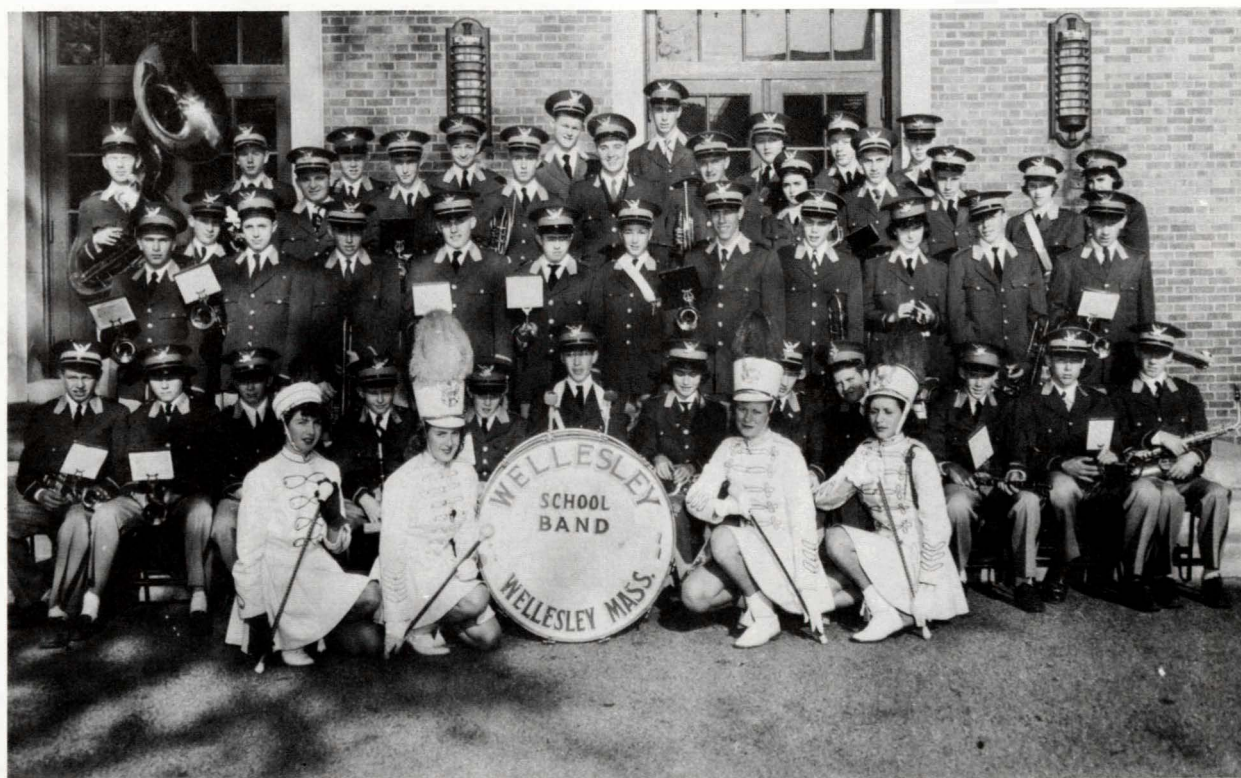

On the sidelines, nine forms in white and red cheered enthusiastically, successful in their attempt to stimulate the excitement of the crowd.

A swarm of banners waved to and fro, proclaiming their owners' allegiance. Coat collars were turned up to ears; breaths were white on the crisp air as songs and cheers were sounded; feet were pounded on the stands in step with the exhilarating marches of the band.

All this a background for an undefeated team!

CO-CAPTAINS

Cremoni and Primevara

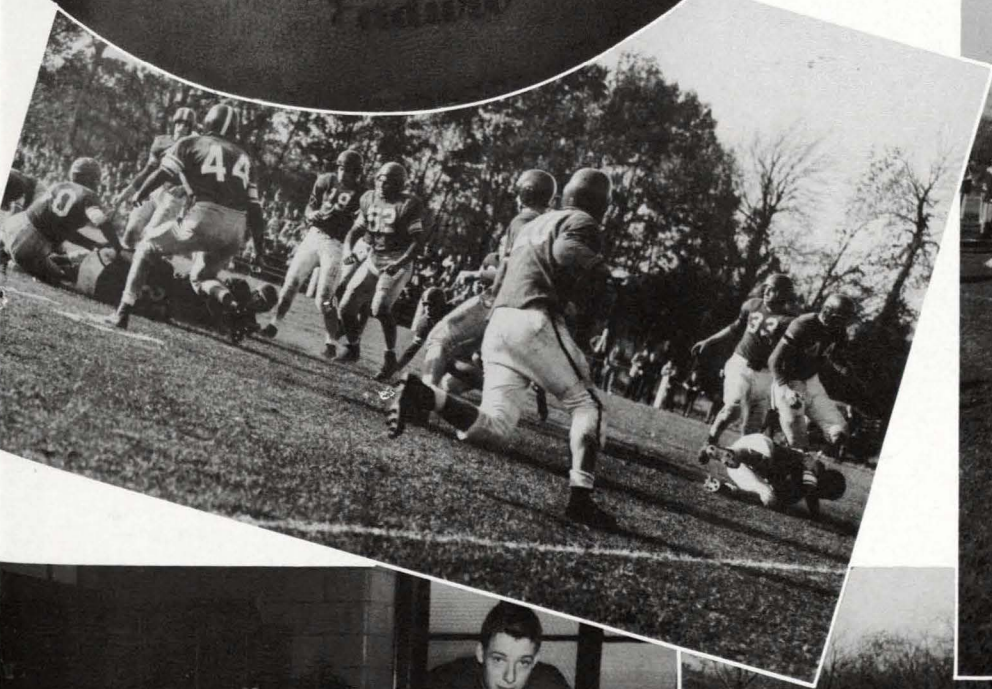

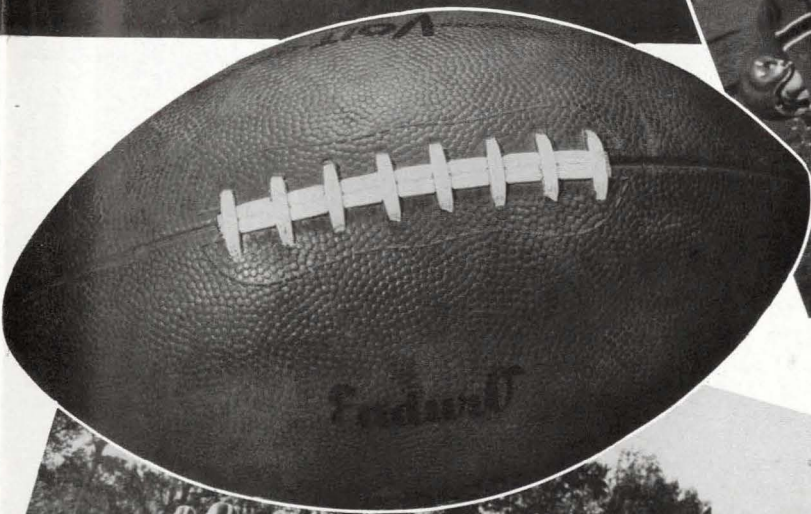

As the afternoons of September grew shorter, the football team, in their nondescript practice uniforms, were running wind-sprints, doing calisthenics, throwing and kicking the ball, and "hitting the machine," a favorite among the boys. Occasionally was heard a grunt and maybe a groan, but always the booming voice of Charlie Gubellini could be heard. He was a football coach with an unreserved amount of energy and inspiration.

At the beginning of the season the Red Raiders, though few in number, were many in spirit and enthusiasm. Former members of those famous Sophomore "pups," they silently hoped that they would go down in the annals of Wellesley football as the first undefeated varsity team. With no major injuries and a co-operative weather man, the Raiders saw the dream of an undefeated season materialize as win after win was racked up. Out of the record of nine wins, no losses, and no ties, the two most memorable games were probably those with Natick and Concord. Natick was beaten by Wellesley for the first time in six years; Concord, suffering its second loss in seven years, was beaten in a three-touchdown surge during the second half, to bring the Raiders from behind, 13-0, to a decisive 21-13 victory.

Some of those stars who were molded into a winning team were Arrington, Ramsland, and Waldron at ends; Severson at center; those big powerhouses, Gallerani, Johnston, and Bourque, at tackles; and the spit-fire co-captains, Primevara and Cremoni, at guards. Then, too, there was that backfield which rolled up all those T.D.'s: zig-zag Zigler, with his twisting, turning power that staggered the opposition; Bob Woods, who electrified the crowds with his fast and tricky maneuvering; Maurice Balboni, with his deadly passing and kicking attack; and the two tough speedsters, Bob Sweeney and Johnny McTigue.

The splendid play of these stars was supported brilliantly by outstanding squad members: Kilmain, Gibson, Cooke, Baughman, Campbell, Lutz, Keefe, Sanderson, Sadler, and Corbett.

The daily secular readings, accompanied by appropriate passages from Scripture, have become a customary part of school life. Those short passages read each morning at the start of school contributed to the day a new thought on which to begin each morning's work.

This year the Devotionals Committee has been larger than ever, indicating a new interest on the part of the students. The chairmen of the group, Janet Fraser, Cynthia Morrow, and JoAnne Eastburn, have worked together and with Mr. Crockett to plan each week's readings. Special selections were chosen for the various weeks such as National Education Week and Brotherhood Week; the selections were taken from the works of such men as Peter Marshall and Albert Schweitzer.

Each morning the readings were preceded by music suitable to the thought of the selections. The task of choosing the music was capably handled by Margot Peterson.

The quality of the readings has been consistently high throughout the year; the efforts of the Committee have been successful in providing inspirational words for every morning's thought.

"The secular reading for this morning—"

L. to R.: B. Greco, J. Zerga, S. Willey, M. Willey, D. Grandy, J. Grandy.

In the lobby and in the corridors of our school there are centers of interest: the show case and the bulletin boards. The focal points of the school, they always set forth helpful and interesting material.

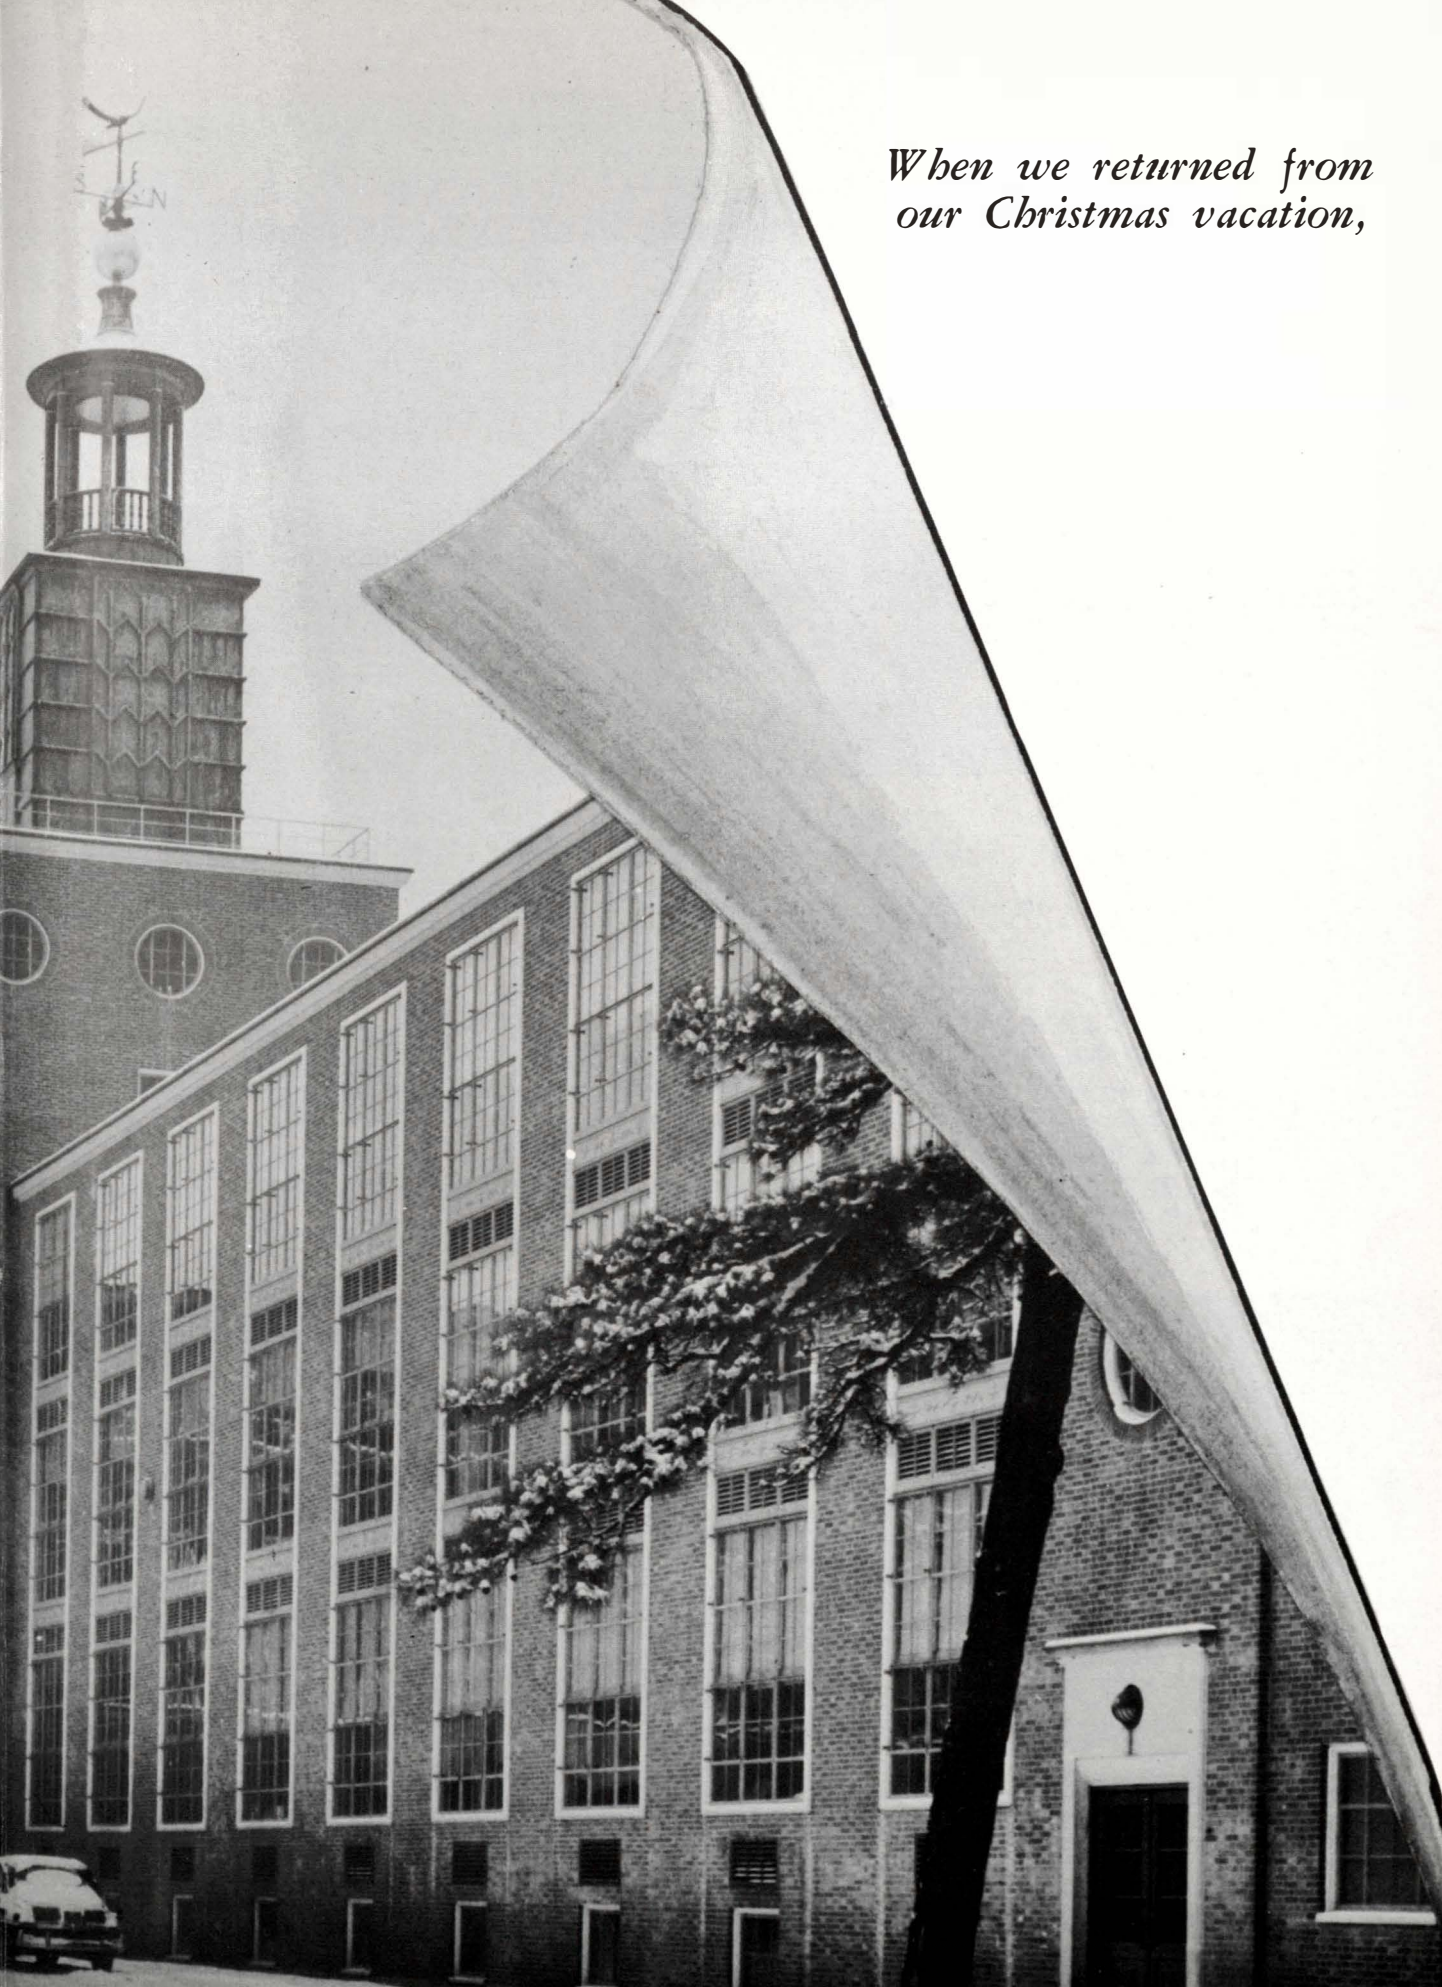

Frequently, information concerning vocations and scholarships is posted for the attention of those who pass the bulletin boards. Regularly featured is a wide coverage of colleges of interest to various students. Sports have been accounted for with the lively layouts on the first floor board.

In the lobby, the center of attraction is the show case. Striking exhibits are in evidence, representing subjects from library suggestions to track trophies. A most unusual exhibit was set up during United Nations Week; a collection of handmade dolls charmingly portrayed the traditional costumes of the member nations.

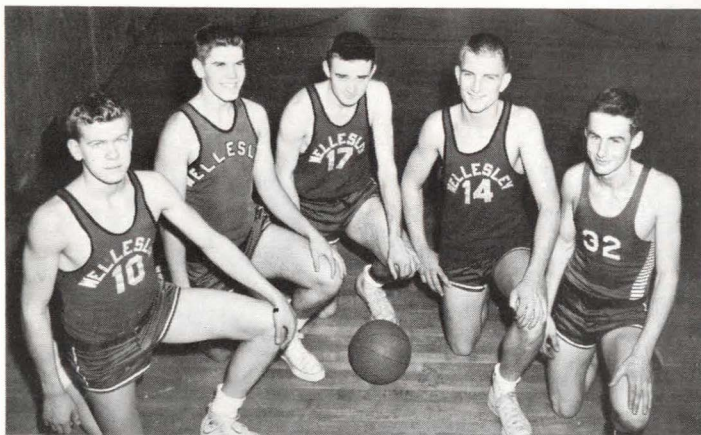

Both the Show Case and Bulletin Board Committees, under the sponsorship of Mr. Etmekjian and Miss Bronson, respectively, contribute immeasurably to the school by presenting such attractively arranged information.

STARTING FIVE

Akeson, Bjornson, Zigler, Waldron, Shively

Wellesley's 1952-53 basketball season, although disappointing so far as the team's record goes, has been an interesting one. The team has been erratic—at times looking good and then bad. Coach Kerivan has had to mold a team out of a group with little experience, as there were only two returning lettermen and very little height. Despite these two handicaps, the team on occasions has looked fairly good. Wellesley lost all four of its pre-season warm-up games. However, in the Winchester game, the team put on one of its better performances.

Winchester, on the crest of a twenty-seven game winning streak, was forced to come back from a first half tie to win by only nine points. Wellesley also pushed a strong Mission High team all the way before the visitors finally won by a small margin. In the Bay State League competition, Wellesley has had continued bad luck, winning only three of ten games. They beat Framingham once and Walpole twice. The number of sophomores and juniors on the team, many of whom played a lot this year, is encouraging for next year's team.

Only a few years ago there was no organized Dramatic Club in the high school. Now the Chameleons have become one of the biggest and busiest activities in the school program. With a record membership of almost one hundred and twenty-five the club has faced the problem of keeping everyone busy. All through the year the Chameleons have been sponsoring interesting and amusing activities not only for actors, but stage hands, directors, make-up artists, and business-minded members.

The club meets regularly every month. The executive board and program committee worked with Miss Milliken and President Carol Brickett to plan entertaining meetings for club members. The programs included one act plays, movies, guests from outside the school, and even a gala Christmas party. Courses in back stage fundamentals, make-up, and directing were given after school all during the fall and winter.

The Chameleons have successfully entertained not only themselves, but the school and the town as well. The club presented several fine assembly programs during the year. A new venture was the outside assembly which featured a professional make-up artist. Once again Wellesley was invited to see the talents of the Chameleons displayed in Play Night, which is fast becoming a tradition here. Three entirely different plays were presented by fine casts, much to the enjoyment of the audience. From this group the selection of a play for the Massachusetts Drama Festival was made. This event has also become a regular part of Chameleon activities and has provided thrills and excitement for all club members as well as the play casts.

To the Chameleons go our congratulations for a successful year, and our thanks for the entertainment they have given us.

and the Bradford reported all the school highlights.

Six times each year the whole school looks forward to the distribution of the Bradford. This year the staff has tried to incorporate into the issues full coverage of all school activities. Their efforts have resulted in a fine school paper, full of accurate and interesting news as well as many entertaining features. The small group of senior editors responsible for the "new look" of the Bradford has spent many hours before deadlines, working with Mr. Lape, trying to assure the readers of a really fine newspaper. Under the direction of Co-Editors Connie Blunt and Terry McCabe and Managing Editor Litsa Olmstead, the staff of writers has worked quietly and efficiently. Sue Gordon, as Business Editor, has done an excellent job of landing advertising and subscriptions.

We remember particularly this year the coverage of our successful football season, the report of the Senior Play, the ever-popular Personality Plus articles and Draper Hill's cartoons. Above all, this year, the editors have urged full co-operation and participation from the entire student body. The quality of contributions submitted for each issue has reflected the school's growing interest in and appreciation of our school newspaper.

If you heard any Seniors addressing their classmates as "ye" and "thee" this winter there was really nothing to worry about. It was only the cast of the Senior Play who were living their parts. After weeks of exhaustive rehearsing, the Senior Class finally presented the old favorite A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court. All the efforts that went into the play were well rewarded by the enthusiastic response of the audience. And why not? Under the direction of Mr. Crockett the cast turned in a fine performance.

The play was packed full of thrills and laughter—the antics of the brave, but somewhat dull Sagramor, Merlin's evil muttering and hocus-pocus, Hank's "real" magic, the disdainful queen and her harried husband, and so many more.

All through the winter the girls set them up,

This year, under the able leadership of Miss Gloria Lombard, the girls' team won its first four games with Weston, Concord, Needham and Hingham. Later in the season came games with Norwood, Natick, Lexington and Newton. In addition, class teams played each other in an intramural schedule. As usual, skills acquired during the class gym periods were applied when tryouts came for the choosing of the varsity and junior varsity teams. Weston has always been the great basketball rival of Wellesley, and the games with them are always the closest, fastest and most exciting of any. In the first game with Weston this year, Snooke Stanley scored 23 points to pull the contest out of the fire. The Merrill twins, Anne and Jane, added to the excitement that day and in every game with high scoring and star guarding.

Our girls played hard and well. Nice work, girls! May the emphasis always be on the kind of clean sportsmanship we have seen in you this year.

If you had ever had any business on the lower corridor during any of those cold, bleak days in December, January or February, you would have perhaps noticed some of the members of the wrestling team running the length of the corridor or perhaps heard them grunting and groaning in the bicycle room which was the haven of all W.H.S. wrestlers. Upon closer observation in the wrestling room you would have undoubtedly noticed "Doc" Stergios, the agile coach, who knows all the holds and every trick in the book. You might have seen John Sanderson rolling out of one of Freddie Bourque's pin holds or perhaps Bobby Kilmain would have been showing Red Cremoni a new "take down." In the corner you might have spotted Kelvin Keefe, Gerald Ramsland, and Paul Rutledge talking over a future meet. During the wrestling season these boys had a rather tight and strenuous schedule, having on the average two meets a week. They had to keep in tip-top condition, sometimes going without a meal to make weight.

Co-Captain Gallerani

As the winter set in and the cold came to stay for a while, one could see moving down the corridor, a tremendous sack, perhaps with a stick of some sort or a skate protruding here or there. This was one of Mr. Hines' ice men with his burden of hockey equipment. With a third of last year's men returning in '53, the hockey team had the experience and the power to make things pop this year.

Our opponents at the Gardens quaked in their skates when they saw wing men Bob Woods and Ron Gallerani coming down the boards; and forwards Eddie Primevara and Warren McLea with center Dave Chapin bearing down on them from center ice. Gene Meier would shoot the puck down to Walter Evans, who would set up Mauri Balboni for a Wellesley score. When the going was tough at our end, Phil Johnston and Jim Corbett were around to help goalie Bob Murray; and Pete Wilde would very probably steal the puck and take it up the ice to the enemy goal.

When the boys came off the ice after a gruelling game, they were tired but smiling. They had played their best game and they were happy for their day's work.

As the days began to get longer and the male athletes at W.H.S. got tired of being confined to that stuffy gymnasium, we realized that April was upon us bringing with it the baseball season. This was the time at which our baseball stars, coached by that teller of all tales "Hal" Goodnough, came to life, posing a deadly threat to all comers. These unsung heroes of the baseball diamond played not for the cheers of the onlookers, but for their love and enjoyment of the game.

We can remember many of the men that made our baseball season a thrilling one. Meier, Sweeney and McLea were our pitching aces from the word "go." Woods and Primevara contributed their smooth coordinated fielding. Gallerani, Cooke, Bolles, and Gibson backed pitching and fielding up with their timely hitting and their all-around agility on the bases. This combination of heavy hitting, excellent fielding and superior pitching made champions out of the Wellesley High School baseball squad.

Our orchestra, under the baton of Raymond E. Leach, greets us at most of our assembly programs with snappy marches done with much vitality and skill. This year the Conductor reported increased interest in the string section, with ten prospective candidates to come up from the Junior High School next year. Practice periods in the auditorium provide nearby study groups with inspiring music as an accompaniment.

Several times during the year, the orchestra has given valuable assistance at assemblies in which other groups participated. The orchestra became an integral part of the Christmas Music Assembly. During the halves of the Gym Show, the orchestra provided excellent incidental music. The last memories of the seniors each year is that of the solemn strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" played by the orchestra as the graduates file down the aisle at Alumnae Hall. We are proud of the group and offer them thanks for service ably given.

Only a few years ago the Service Club was not in existence. Now the organization has grown to be a large club. At dances we can see the creative skill of this group. Every season of the year posters for all occasions are on the walls. Very often members help with scenery for various plays. However, this year the club was not organized until late in the second term because of Mr. Simone's long illness. The enrollment has grown considerably over the last year as have the responsibilities. We offer our best wishes to this newest of Wellesley High's clubs, and hope to see increasingly more and more of their good work at our dances and activities.

When the grass became green again and the park department fixed up the tennis courts, the golf and tennis teams took to their respective fields and began to prepare themselves for a good season. The golf team was small, but strong and experienced. Over at the country club on some bright afternoon one might have seen Peter Keene and Jim Fay practicing some drives, while Eddie Madden was practicing his putting. These boys enjoyed their sport and wanted to enjoy a good season. At the same time, over on the Hunnewell courts might frequently be seen the members of the boys' racquet squad. Herbie Gross served a fast one down to Bob Pipes who rifled it back to Freddie McIntyre. Bob, Freddie and Herb, besides looking for a good season, had their eyes on the girls' tennis team on the other end of the court, where Jame Merrill and Liz Leyon would be having a fast rally. Peggy Hopkins and Margo Peterson were practicing serving to Arlene Koelbel who speedily returned the balls over the net. The girls also had their eyes on a good year and the boys. But no matter how the season went, on the green or the court, all these people had fun and that's what counts.

The girls had their own version of the national pastime

Springtime is softball time for Wellesley's girls. It is at this time that we see the girls hard at work having fun out on the practice field. The game offers one escape from winter imprisonment; maybe that's why so many girls are eager to join. Games with Newton, Concord, Weston, Natick and Hingham are among those which the team plays. The girls are chosen in a series of try-outs until a good team emerges from among the many hopefuls.

Skills and muscles develop during gym periods, and are used to advantage later on the playing field. Softball's great, the girls agree; it's the game for fun-loving, sports-minded gals.

Wellesley's trackmen were out to burn the cinders this year. There were several lettermen returning from last year and some of those had the experience of the undefeated 1951 team. On any balmy afternoon in spring one was likely to see Dave Pulling and Bob Hahn really making tracks towards that all important tape. Paul Zigler was there, steadily cutting down time on his fast dash. Louis Reagan would be practicing his superb high jump, in which he has only once been defeated. Strongarm Baughman made points for Wellesley in the shot-put division. Bob Hogarty, a terrific long distance runner, was a great asset to Wellesley's cause. These boys were out for a good season and a good time, and by the way in which they happily take on all comers, they have surely accomplished both aims.

"With the voice of singing" our vocal groups

The vocal groups, as you probably know, were completely reorganized this year. We now have, in place of the boys' and girls' choirs, a combined Glee Club and separate boys' and girls' Choruses. The Choruses include all students who enjoy singing, while the Glee Club is a selected group who are chosen from the Choruses after tryouts. Two still smaller groups of approximately a dozen each are the Ensembles, the members of which are chosen through further tryouts. These Ensembles meet after school, whereas the other groups meet during X period.

All, under the direction of that amiable soul Will Riggs, participated in the Thanksgiving and Christmas Assemblies, and the Christmas Festival held at the Junior High School. A few members of the Chorus participated in the All-State Chorus, the Southeastern Festival, and the annual New England Festival.

During rehearsals, the fellows and girls have always managed to have a lot of fun doing a great deal of work. No record of the year would be complete without mention of the faithful accompaniment of Kathy Edgerton and Connie Blunt.

Last spring a group of energetic juniors began spending quite a bit of time in Miss Palmer's room. They hadn't done anything wrong. They were merely beginning to plan for this year's Yearbook, the 1953 Wellesleyan.

From these early meetings there emerged Co-Editors Janet Fraser and Ronald Dunbar, who took over the tremendous task of putting the book to press.

All the preliminary planning was done last spring, but the ideas had to be carried out this year. There were pictures to be taken, copy to be written, and lay outs to be arranged. The Editors met once a week with the Planning Board, a group of nine seniors, to make various decisions, divide the assignments, and put the dummy together.

It has been a big job to make this yearbook a really fine one. The Planning Board wanted to include in it all the important events of our senior year so that when you, the reader, open this book years from now its pages will bring back the excitement and pleasures of your high school year. They feel that after a year of hard work it has finally succeeded in capturing on paper all these wonderful memories. The Class of 1953 has good reason to feel proud of the Editors and Planning Board of their yearbook.

In the National Honor Society, credit was given where credit is due.

Throughout the school year various awards are made for participation in athletics and other school activities. There is one award, however, given to a few students, which requires all this participation and more. Election to the National Honor Society is one of the highest honors a student may receive. To meet the qualifications a student must be an 'all-round, versatile member of his class, liked and admired by fellow classmates and faculty alike.

Scholarship is, of course, an important factor in the election of candidates, but is by no means the only qualification, for it is an accepted fact that in today's world scholarship alone cannot equip young people for living. The National Honor Society requires of its members other qualities: character, service, and leadership in the school and community.

Each year the faculty elects not more than fifteen per cent of the Senior class to the society. Not more than five per cent of the Junior class are elected as provisional members to be confirmed in their senior year.

During the Honor Society assembly Mr. Moulton, sponsor of the Wellesley chapter, gives the members their pins. At this time the elected students repeat the pledge which emphasizes the dignity and honor of the society:

"I pledge myself to uphold the high principles of this society to which I have been elected, striving in every way by word and deed to make its ideals the ideals of my school and of my life."

We Remember

the Senior Administration,

In December after class elections had been held, the Senior Council had its first big job. Composed of the newly elected senior class officers and the senior members of the Student Council, the Senior Council undertook the business responsibilities of the Senior Play. In the early spring, under the guidance of Mr. Spang, the Council began preparations for the all-important senior activities, which included the Senior Assembly, Prom, Picnic, and finally Graduation. Everyone who attended these events surely appreciated the effort of the Senior Council which made our senior year the best possible.
